Along our driveway like soldiers you stand,
With the grandest Tipuana tipu of all standing tall and grand.

Ever-changing through each season's hand,
Always green, yet never quite the same,
A living sculpture worthy of your name.

Your branches dance in summer skies,
Where noisy galahs swoop and rise,
Feasting gladly on your gifts so free,
A daily chorus in your canopy.

Golden flowers softly fall,
Like scattered sunshine overall,
Feeding busy bees that hum and roam,
Finding in your blooms a sweetened home.

Standing tall through wind and weather,
Holding earth and sky together,
Casting cooling shade below,
A peaceful place where hearts grow slow.

What a delight you are all year through,
Majestic and faithful in every hue,
Guardians of the driveway, proud and true,
Forever welcoming us home to you.
